The Presidential Tour.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., October 21.—The presidential party reached this place at quarter past this morning. They were welcomed by the entire population and spent a thoroughly enjoyable time in the streets of the city by carriages. They were cheered here and there.

A score of ladies and gentlemen boarded the train at Biltmore and rode with the party to Asheville. A few minutes after noon the train shot through the tunnel under the uppermost crest of the Alleghenies and began the descent of the Atlantic slope.

LYNCHBURG, Va., October 21.—The presidential special train passed here at 11 o'clock without stopping.

The Mormon Church Case.

SALT LAKE, October 21.—On the opening of the territorial supreme court to-day Solicitor McDonald made his argument in behalf of the Mormon church. He said he would touch upon the grounds touched upon by Broadhead yesterday. He sprang nothing new except a declaration against polygamy, opposing restriction and appeals for liberty of conscience and religion. Attorneys construe his effort unfavorably with that of Broadhead on the same side.

United States Attorney Peterson of Utah closed the case for the government. He claimed this proceeding in equity for conservation of the property of a defunct corporation, and to test the validity of a law of Congress, citing the deed of gift by Taylor, head of the church, last February, dispensing over a quarter of a million dollars in personal property to the lord sinks of Zion as evidence of the need for the court to appoint a receiver. He showed that the title to land owned by the church in this city consisted in a patent value actually acquired in 1872. [illegible] Further that no limit exists within which congress must act in disapproval of territorial statutes.

Members of the bar are of the opinion generally that government has won its case and that a receiver will be appointed.

The members of the Presbyterian synod of Colorado did a very sensible thing in endorsing the order of Indian Commissioner Atkins requiring the teaching of only such language than English to pupils in the Indian schools. The sooner is this language thoroughly acquired, by the Indians, the sooner will that racial feeling which has been such a barrier to their ultimate civilization be obliterated.

The Denver Evening Telegram has lately passed into the control of Mr George H Gray, who has secured the services of Mr. James McCarthy, better known to the readers of the GAZETTE as Fitz Mac, as editor. His abilities as a writer are generally known and acknowledged. The Telegram is the only paper in Denver which is giving cordial and hearty support to the republican ticket, and its course is meeting with general approbation among the members of the party in that county. Under the new management the paper has been enlarged to double its former size, and is meeting with a very liberal patronage.

Some of the active workers in the republican party of Arapahoe county are feeling a little disappointment over the fact that they have not received the attention in this campaign to which they claim they are entitled. The Denver Evening Telegram sensibly remarks in this connection that it will be well for active working republicans to exercise a little forbearance just now. Nothing is to be gained by getting angry with each other for little differences of opinion that do not go to the extent of party disloyalty or Pickwickian proportions of a personal nature. It should be kept in mind, and will be remembered later, if kept in bad policy. It is a great deal more important to party things to keep its lines in good discipline than to win any personal battle. By the exercise of good judgment and good feeling we can do both in the present campaign.

The secretary of the treasury has given rise to [illegible] discussion and thought. The Louisville Courier Journal [illegible] scarcity of money to the increased railway construction during the present year. It says in the first eight months of 1887 there were 6,000 miles of railway constructed in the United States and as the work has been so fast a rate exceeding that of any previous year it is inferred that the year's building will be the largest. In 1882 12,982 miles were laid. The average cost of completed railroads in the United States is about $50,000 per mile, but not many have cost as little as this, as low a figure as $25,000, for new lines, hence a $100,000,000 put into the form in eight months and there seems to be a prospect of the year's capital expenditure amounting to $120,000,000. The use of so much capital in one industry, the same being above all [illegible] to the government, has a deal to do practically to the scarcity of money in the principal financial markets.

In order to [illegible] the immense [illegible] of the annual report of the governor of Dakota to the secretary of the interior Attention is [illegible] the population of the territory is now more than 368,000 an increase of nearly 60,000 in the last year. In the light of these figures it seems to be hard to find any opposition to the claims of Dakota for statehood. The claims of Nevada which has a population of 62,000, or half a million less than that of Dakota enjoys and [illegible] which are denied to the citizens of the latter territory, for the sole reason apparently, that it would add another to the list of republican states. The course of the [illegible] in rejecting the [illegible] has [illegible] and [illegible] in the [illegible] of the [illegible] in this matter has [illegible] to [illegible] which [illegible] have been [illegible] mere partisan prejudice and has manifested no other disregard for the public welfare of the citizens of Dakota. The record which it has made on this question is one on which public spirited democrats can take much pride.

We are in daily receipt of papers published by the residents of the National Editorial association who attended the annual meeting of that body at Denver last month. These papers contain full accounts of the sessions of the association, and the [illegible] of the visiting editors to attendance throughout the state. Without any exception they speak in the highest terms of the courtesies and attentions shown them by the citizens of Denver, various points which they visited and their impressions with reference to the resources, climate and prospects of the state are of the most flattering character. They wish to Manitou, Colorado Springs is to [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
